

Both a step back in time and an experience of modern style and luxury, The Eliza Jane sits at the crossroads of New Orleans' culture and industry. Our name is inspired by Eliza Jane Nicholson, a fiery-haired poet-turned-heiress and the first woman publisher of a major metropolitan newspaper, The Daily Picayune, which was printed where this hotel now stands. Perfectly poised at the center of New Orleans in the historic Central Business District, The Eliza Jane is just blocks from the French Quarter, Garden District, and Riverwalk and around the corner from one of the city's most celebrated parade routes.
